Dr. Mark P. Orbe
Western Michigan University
“Approaches to Culture”

A native of New London, Conn. and a product of New London public schools, Dr. Orbe is a internationally-known educator, author and consultant/trainer. With a bachelor’s degree in Organizational Communication (Ohio University, 1986) and a master’s degree in Higher Education Administration (University of Connecticut, 1989), Dr. Orbe has worked as a student affairs administrator at several colleges and universities. In 1993, he received his doctoral degree in Interpersonal/Intercultural Communication from Ohio University and began teaching full-time.

Dr. Orbe’s teaching and research interests center on the inextricable relationship between culture and communication as played out in a number of contexts (intrapersonal, interpersonal, intergroup, mass media). He teaches a wide variety of undergraduate and graduate courses (interpersonal communication, interracial/intercultural communication, communication theory, critical research methods, and gender and communication) and is actively involved in numerous research projects. He has presented more than 80 papers at regional, national and international academic conferences. He’s published numerous books, articles in scholarly journals and chapters in edited books.

At present, Dr. Orbe is professor of Communication & Diversity in the School of Communication at Western Michigan University where he holds a joint appointment in the Gender and Women’s Studies Program. He also is the immediate past editor of The Journal of Intergroup Relations and the current co-editor of The International and Intercultural Communication Annual. From 1993-97, he served as an assistant professor of Communication at Indiana University Southeast, where he also served as department coordinator and the first campuswide director of Diversity. Dr. Orbe has worked as a student affairs administrator at several colleges and universities. In 1993, he received his doctoral degree in Interpersonal/Intercultural Communication from Ohio University and began teaching full time.
